

Taking it to the Curbside: Engaging Communities to Create Sustainable Change for Health Tuesday, April 6, 2010

Please join us in Boston, MA for a one-day northeast regional workshop for investigators and community partners to address issues of sustainability and capacity building related to community health (see attached flyer). The workshop will focus on how academic and community partners can work together using research to foster sustainable health interventions. We will be accepting an even number of investigators and community partners, and spots are limited, so REGISTER NOW (pre-registration is required).

The workshop, sponsored by the Association for Prevention Teaching and Research, will be hosted by Harvard Medical School & the Harvard Clinical and Translational Science Center (Harvard Catalyst), with support from the Institute for Community Health. It will be held at the Joseph B. Martin Conference Center in Boston.

Co-sponsors include: Boston University, City of Lawrence Mayor's Health Task Force, Community-Campus Partnerships for Health (CCPH), Center for Community Health Education Research and Service, Common Pathways, Harvard University Office of Faculty Development and Diversity, Harvard School of Public Health, Immigrant Services Provider Group for Health, Massachusetts Cancer Prevention and Research Control Network, Tufts University, and University of Massachusetts, Boston/Dana-Farber Harvard Cancer Center Comprehensive Cancer Partnerships Program.

The Keynote Speaker will be Dr. Nina Wallerstein, Professor, Department of Community & Family Medicine, University of New Mexico and the Panel Facilitator will be Dr. Sarena Seifer, Executive Director of CCPH.

For more information and to register, please visit http://www.aptrweb.org/prof\_dev/community10\_harvard.html or contact Dr. Ann DiGirolamo at adigirolamo@challiance.org.

We hope to see you there!